

enough to pay for a seat on the Federal appeals court.

That's right, Mr. Speaker. Ten million dollars.

Just think what you could buy with that much money. A trip around the world. A big, fancy yacht. Or, a seat on one of the highest courts in the land.

As a life-time Federal judge, you could have power over the lives of millions of Americans. You could make decisions that shape society and the economy. And you would not even need judicial experience. All you would need is a little fund-raising experience working for the Democrat Party.

It's really a no-brainer if you think about it, Mr. Speaker. I mean, what would you rather do with $10 million. Invest in cattle futures, or sit on the Federal bench for the rest of your life. Not a bad deal, I'd say.

AMERICA LOST IN THE WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION

(Mr. BROWN of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, less than a week ago, we were celebrating Earth Day.

Today our country's environmental laws are under assault not only by the GINGRICH extremists in Congress but also in the World Trade Organization, the WTO.

The United States lost yesterday in the WTO. The WTO said our Clean Air Act violates international trade laws—yes, the same Clean Air Act that we celebrated last week.

But our environment wasn't the only loser in the WTO.

Workers in America's refineries lost, too. Workers in places like Ohio and Pennsylvania and Louisiana lost because they will have to compete with dirty gas imports from Venezuela and Brazil.

Mr. Speaker, America lost yesterday in the World Trade Organization. It was our first loss; unfortunately it will not be our last unless we repeal some of these trade agreements.

REPEAL THE CLINTON GAS TAX

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, as almost every American knows gas prices have climbed 5 cents a gallon the past 2 weeks and are at the highest level since the Persian Gulf war. President Clinton has dispatched his Energy Secretary to find the root of this problem.

She should not have to fly very far or look hard—after all, this same administration increased gas taxes by almost 5 cents per gallon in 1993. Offered in the name of deficit reduction, this tax hike is now hitting millions of American motorists who are grumbling loudly at the pumps. Fiscal conservatives in Congress are currently exploring ways to repeal this regressive tax. However, it's not easy because as we found when repealing the Clinton tax on seniors' Social Security benefits, liberals hate to give up any taxes. The American people will be given a clear choice—the tax hikes and status quo spending of the Clinton administration or the billions of dollars of real spending cuts and tax relief of this Congress.

Americans should think about that the next time they fill up knowing President Clinton feels their pain.

GAS PRICES

(Mr. KLINK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KLINK. Mr. Speaker, I had not intended to speak on this, but after I have heard the comments from the other side regarding the increase in the gas tax back in 1993, I cannot constrain myself. First of all, I would remind my friends, let us go back and take a look at what happened under Presidents Reagan and Bush in regard to their increase in the gas tax. Let us not be revisionist.

Let us take a look at what happened to gas prices in this country when we raised it 4.3 cents per gallon. Gas prices in 1993, in 1994, in 1995 went down. They did not go up. But here we are in 1996 and we are reaching back to 1993 to be able to blame President Clinton because we have nothing else to blame him on because the stock market went up, employment went up, unemployment went down. Misery went down, so let us blame him on something else.

We are here right now trying to make sure that these working poor have an ability to earn a living wage. We have given them, in the same bill that increased the gas taxes, an earned-income tax credit to help people get off welfare and into work. The GOP right now is opposed to giving people a 90-cent raise in the minimum wage. I would say that somewhere between Abraham Lincoln and the current Republican leadership, the GOP has taken an about-face on slavery.

THE WAR ON DRUGS

(Mr. HERGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, President Clinton has been absent on the war on drugs. Yet yesterday, after more than 3 years in office, President Clinton finally announced a plan to reduce illegal drug use. But Mr. Speaker, it would appear to be too little too late. President Clinton has backed down on the war on drugs. For example, it was President Clinton that only days after taking office, cut the Office of National Drug Control Policy by more than 80 percent. It is during the Clinton administration that drug use among children skyrocketed while interdiction and prosecution efforts dropped. It is during the Clinton administration that marijuana use among young people has increased 50 percent and has jumped 137 percent among 12- to 13-year-olds. Mr. Speaker, who is the President trying to kid?

The President has dropped the ball on the war on drugs and now he's playing election year politics.

PAY EQUITY FOR FEDERAL FIREFIGHTERS

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, tonight is the eighth annual fire and emergency services dinner. Two thousand of our Nation's fire and emergency services leaders gather in Washington to recognize the service of our Nation's firefighters and emergency responders, safety instructors, engineers, arson investigators, and others in the fire community.

However, hundreds of Federal firefighters will not be in attendance tonight because they are fighting brushfires in the West. Mr. Speaker, they are experiencing what many are calling the driest conditions in over a century.

Here in the Congress, I have introduced a bill, H.R. 858, the Federal Firefighters Pay Fairness Act, which would correct a significant pay inequity which exists for these and nearly 10,000 Federal firefighters throughout our country.

Mr. Speaker, despite the fact that my bill has over 135 bipartisan sponsors, we have been unable to get a hearing in the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight Subcommittee on Civil Service. In the next several days, I will be sending a bipartisan letter to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA], the chairman, requesting a hearing on this bill with approximately 100 Members of this body. I hope, Mr. Speaker, that we will see a hearing on that bill in the near future.

HEAD START WORKS IN ARIZONA

(Mr. KOLBE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in a bipartisan way to speak about a program that I think is widely applauded by most people in this House, and that is Head Start. It is a program that has certainly worked well in my district. I think it has worked well across the country, and it has worked well because it does good things and it has a performance record that we can all talk about. It is a program that is designed to provide nutrition, health screening and treatment, education, and social services to pre-school-aged children and to their parents, and it has contributed greatly to
